THE COTTON MARKETS.

gust. 32-646. value: August and September, 32-646. Jede. buyers.

NEW YORK, October 28.—While the cotton market was very quiet to-day, it was also very steady. Public cables and weather reports falled to make much impression either one way or another. Private cables were decidedly hopeful as to the outlook for business with Egyptian spinners. The market was generally stendier, owing chiefly to covering on the part of the more conservative shorts, who feared that the market had been extensively oversold at low prices. It was difficult to interest traders in cotton as a speculative venture, because the movement continued very heavy, and some were predicting a new record for maximum receipts, to displace the record established last week. The market, therefore, had but little support beyond that furnished by the shorts themselves. This was sufficient to hold prices, but not to advance them to any considerable extent.

May, $6.069$5.07; June, $5.1137$5.12; Juny, $5.159$5.17.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows an increase for the week just closed of 258,935 bales, against an increase of 323.25 in 1894.

The total visible is 3.296.314 bales, against year and an increase of 323.25 in 1894.

The total visible is 3.296.314 bales, against 2,643.36 last year. Of this the total of American cotton is 2,105.314 bales, against 2,299.361 last year, and of all other kinds, including Egyptian, Brazilian, Indian, etc., 191.000 bales, against 185.000 last year.

HAMPTON GOLF TOURNAMENT.

Opening of the Course-The Contes tants-First-Prize Winner. NEWPORT NEWS, VA., October 28 .-(Special.)-Superb weather conditions and a strong list of entries, together with the excellent form of the new links, combined to render the opening of the golf course of the Hampton Roads Golf and Country club yesterday a most auspicious event. Five clubs pitted their star golfers in the tournament—the Chevy Chase, the Lakeside, the Westbrook, the Baltimore, and the Hampton Roads. The play began at 11 o'clock, and was spirited throughout. A number of the lady friends of the consequence attended from Old Polar, Hampestants attended from Old Point, Hamp-ton, and Newport News to witness the port and inspire their knights. The pres-ence of the ladies about the course and on the piazza of the club-house lent agreeable color to the picture of the opening of the tourney. The colors of her fa ored club floated from the corsage each feminine spectator, and the ladies were not slow to applaud the clever players when good points were scored.

The entries were as follows: Livingston, Westbrook, Long Island, N. Y.; Small, 2314894 2314894 2374814 2476819 2474 2478 Westbrook, Long Island, N.
